Talking Medicines - Bringing Medical Packaging to Life

Talking Medicines™ are specialists in creating patient support programs and materials using Augmented Reality technology to engage patients directly from medical packaging.

Using image recognition and augmented reality software Talking Medicines™ deliver real-time video, pictorial, sound and text information on medicines, disease areas and other areas of patient support directly from printed materials, all viewed via smartphone devices.

Talking Medicines™ address reasons for poor adherence by showing patients how to apply or take medicines, demo peer-to-peer interviews on the consequences of poor medical adherence, encourage social sharing where appropriate, all directly from trusted sources of information - your Pharma company.

With detailed analytics providing the opportunity for continuous feedback and iterative improvements, Talking Medicines™ offers a compelling opportunity to drive improved patient education, understanding and welfare through better self-management, whilst promoting strong ROI through innovative patient support.
