Description

The Chamber of Commerce and Industry of Lille helps companies develop their business at national and international level through information, training, consulting in various fields and the organization of events in order for companies from the region to get to know foreign markets and identify potential business, technology or financial partners. One of the key industries in the region is the ICT industry, with the region being in the vanguard on information and communication technologies. A pioneer in e-commerce, Lille Region also offers many other advantages for Internet or digital arts business. Specialized training programs, advanced research facilities, and the highly connected business ecosystem make it the perfect location for ICT projects. For example, Lille is among France's 5 top regions for information and communication technologies: it is a hotspot for multimedia talent, cultivating expertise in video games, animation and mobile apps and is a pioneer in mail order, retail and e-commerce. The Chamber of Commerce is in direct contact with 56000 companies. That's why, it's very important to do benchmark for them.
